SALARIES RAISED AGAIN

Board of Supervisors Give Lake County Officers
Another Boost

WILL WONDERS EVER CEASE

County Treasurer Carl Westerfield Names
James Hepburn of Highwood, as His Deputy

The County Board of Supervisors of Lake County convened at the court house in Waukegan on Tuesday of this week for the purpose of fixing the bonds of the newly elected County officers, paying election judges salaries, etc. The bond of County Clerk Hendee for the sum of $15,000 was approved.

The bond of County Treasurer Westerfield was fixed as follows, but was not filed, as he will now proceed to get it made out: Bond as treasurer, $300,000 and as collector of taxes, $131,000, making a total of $431,000, the same as that given by former County Treasurer, Elmer Green, Sheriff-elect, a bond for $10,000, and T. A. Simpson as superintendent of schools gave bond for $12,000.

The Supervisors were evidently feeling in a liberal mood at this meeting as one of the most important pieces of business transacted was the raising of the salaries of some of the county officers.

Those affected by the raise and the amount is as follows:
Clerk from $2,300 to $2,500.
Treasurer, from $2,300 to $2,500.
Sheriff, from $1,800 to $1,700.
Deputy sheriff, from $700 to $800.

The first motion was to announce his deputy for the next four years is County Treasurer Carl Westerfield, who on Tuesday afternoon announced that James Hepburn of Highwood would be his deputy in the county treasurer's office.

Hepburn formerly worked at the wire works in Waukegan and was at one time employed on one of the Waukegan papers. He was also city clerk of Highwood for a time.

Mr. Hepburn is a well known and popular young man and his appointment meets with the general approval of the public.

The new officers take their posts officially on Monday, December 5.

NORTHWESTERN LAYS OFF SECTION MEN

There is much mystery in the step taken by the Northwestern rail road this week, in laying off every section gang on the road between Chicago and Fond du Lac.

One reason given is that the road's appropriation money is all spent.

Another is alleged adverse legislation planned.

Another is acute retrenchment.

All the section hands have been laid off until work starts in the spring, and it is estimated that the lay off will affect between 350 and 400 men, employed as steel layers and general section men on the division.

At Waukegan about one hundred section men have been employed in the yards all the time, but last week this number was cut down to two, and these two will be employed at shoveling snow this winter.

It is furthermore rumored that the stations at Zion City, Winthrop Harbor and Beach, with smaller stations may be closed.

It Was Bashfulness.
A school teacher in a town in Bavaria has been arrested for a singular offense. He caught a boy of fourteen and a girl two years younger whispering during school hours, and he made them sit in the same seat with their arms tied together. Both were so bashful that they finally fainted away, and their parents had the teacher arrested for cruelty. The case hasn't been tried yet, but it is safe to say that nothing will be done to the teacher.

The Sneaking Feeling.
Whenever we do a thing we shouldn't do we feel sneaky about it, and a sneaking feeling is the most uncomfortable feeling in the world.—Atchison Globe.

WOODMEN BUY BONDS

Finance Committee Directed to Invest Surplus.

Announcement that the society of the Modern Woodmen of America will levy no January assessment on its members is made following action taken by the board of directors at their session in the head office building Thursday of last week.

Two assessments, those of February and August were skipped this year and the fact that a no-assessment month is to open the year of 1911 is looked upon as a good omen.

The policy of the management of the society is to skip an assessment whenever the condition of the benefit fund makes such a thing practicable and advisable.

Acting on instructions from the board of directors of the Woodmen, the finance committee has arranged for the purchase of $800,000 worth of bonds, most of them to be municipal, the purchase to be made in different cities throughout the country.

The by laws of the society direct that the surplus of the benefit fund be invested in this way, and it was in accordance with this law that the directors ordered the bonds purchased. They will bring the society interest at the rate of 5 per cent and there is no uncertainty as to their value.

BRAKE BEAM DERAILS DAY COACH

What might have been a serious accident on the Soo Line road last Saturday night was averted only by the fact that train number 2, that arrives here south bound at 8:30 p. m., was slowing down for its stop at the Antioch depot and was not running at its customary rate of speed.

As the train was about to enter the milk platform, just north of the depot the brake beam on the day coach dropped and became wedged in the flange of the track, with the result that the day coach was derailed.

Mr. Volkman who was returning home from Burlington was standing on the front platform of the day coach preparatory to alighting at the depot, while the brakeman was standing on the rear platform of the smoker. Realizing that something was wrong he called to the other to jump and both did so, Mr. Volkman landing among the milk cans and receiving a number of bruises.

The wrecker was sent for and the train was enabled to pull out at 3:30 Sunday morning. Had it been under full head way a serious wreck would have undoubtedly resulted.

NAMING OF PENNSYLVANIA

William Blathwayt, Commissioner of Plantations, Suggested It Be Called After the Quaker.

When William Penn was asked by Charles II. to name the new colony over the sea he proposed the name of the queen. William Blathwayt, the commissioner of plantations, bluntly negatived the proposal in the presence of the court, and suggested the Quaker's own name as the proper one for the vast territory that owed its colonization and development to him. The king was not offended, but sided with Blathwayt, and Penn himself was greatly flattered by the compliment. Several letters on the subject were written by him to Blathwayt. These letters were carefully preserved by Blathwayt's descendants, and being recently put up at auction with the original draft by Charles II. of Pennsylvania to Penn, brought nearly $18,000.

The family name of Blathwayt became extinct through the marriage of the sole son of the line to a wealthy Miss Winter, who restored the fallen fortunes of the Blathwayts on condition that her husband adopted the name of Winter. One of the Winters accompanied Sir Francis Drake around the world as his vice-admiral, and another of the family was a vice-admiral under Drake when he destroyed the Armada.

Lord Brougham's Oratory.

We have no orator in the least like Lord Brougham, since the close of Brougham's public career. Everything that nature could do, so far as appearance, manner and voice were concerned, she had done to prevent him from being a great orator; and yet, a great orator he undoubtedly was. I wonder what the house of lords just now would think of a peer who gesticulated and bellowed as Brougham was in the habit of doing. But it was impossible to listen to Brougham and not be carried away by the force of his intellect, by his torrent of words, by the sudden whirl and eddy of his rapid illustrations, and by the longer and shorter stretches of quietude and repose into which his argument occasionally flowed.—From Justin McCarthy's Reminiscences.

NEWSBOY BITTEN BY DOG

Four Vicious Bull Dogs Attack
Little Robert Silvestri of Highland Park

THE VICTIM MAY NOT LIVE

The Worst Dog Biting Accident in the History of Lake County—Boy Is in State of Nervous Collapse

Robert Silvestri, a thirteen year old news boy of Highland Park, may die as the result of thirty wounds on his body sustained from an attack by four bull dogs belonging to C. W. Bulkley of Highland Park.

Young Silvestri, bears ten large wounds and twenty smaller ones, his ears are almost completely chewed off and his features are badly mutilated.

Saturday morning on his paper delivery route he delivered his papers as usual at the Bulkley residence and was going after his bicycle when one bull dog made after him. He made every effort to climb a tree on the edge of the ravine that runs through the place but was pulled from the tree by the canine catching him by the foot and dragging him down. The first dog was soon joined by three other blooded animals from the Bulkley pack and the four dogs mercilessly bit and tore at the prostrate form. His clothing was almost completely torn off and the fact that the youth kept his arms about his neck is all that saved his life, as the dogs worried at his throat and tried to tear it.

Finally a colored coachman at the Bulkley residence heard the confusion and went to the rescue, and he in turn had a battle with the infuriated beasts but finally succeeded in beating them off with a club.

Silvestri was then taken home and three Highland Park physicians were called. They found that besides the thirty wounds he was suffering from a severe nervous collapse.

Two Italian physicians were later called from Chicago to determine if the dogs had rabies or not. They pronounced the dogs not to be suffering from the disease. The wounds such as could be were cauterized and treated but the boy is still in an extremely critical condition.

Mr. Bulkley the owner of the dogs is on an eastern trip at the present time but the family has agreed to care for young Silvestri and to use every means to save his life.

SENSATION FAILS TO DEVELOP

The argument of the motion for a new trial in the suit of Edward Collier against the town of Salem came up before Judge Belden in the circuit court of Kenosha last Tuesday afternoon.

The expected sensational developments failed to put in an appearance. No statement was made of the stories of jury corruption, which have been going the rounds and the sensational story was only mentioned in passing.

District Attorney Baker who represented the town of Salem based his argument on the fact that the jury would have been justified in finding Collier guilty of contributory negligence. The court took the matter under advisement.

INFANT CHOKES TO DEATH

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hanson who reside on the old Wisner farm west of Lake Villa, were on Tuesday of this week called upon to part with their youngest child.

The little one, a babe two months of age was undergoing a siege of whooping cough and had been quite ill from the first. The little one soon became so weakened that it was unable to withstand the violent spells of coughing and its death while directly due to the whooping cough was caused by choking.

Popular Admiration.
"What is it that the people admire in that man's speeches?" said one campaigner.
"I don't know," replied the other, "unless it's his nerve in advocating such extraordinary opinions."

SELLS INDIAN RELICS

Will Wines' Collection of Indian Relics Sold at Auction
by Constable

TO SATISFY A JUDGMENT

Collection was Contained in Forty Boxes
Which Were Sold Under the Hammer Monday

Constable John Ayres held a public sale on Monday, says the Lake County Independent, disposing of the personal effects of Will Wines to satisfy a judgment of $200 in favor of Doc. Drown. The sale realized $55, the greater portion of the articles consisting of boxes, nailed or locked and supposed to contain some of the valuable Indian relics in the collection of which Wines was a virtual fanatic, but so far as can be ascertained, none of the purchasers found any in the boxes bought by them.

Wines will be remembered as an eccentric character who lived here for many years, leaving some seven years ago for Nebraska, where he is supposed to be now. His collection of Indian relics, such as arrow heads, pipes, war clubs, tomahawks, etc., was certainly extensive and of much value, as can be verified by many of our people who had occasion to see them. Wines would travel any distance on foot if necessary in order to locate articles of this kind of which he had heard, and most of his meager savings, were spent in exchange for these relics. It is said that just previous to his leaving here for Nebraska he shipped the most valuable of his collection away; yet it is asserted that much of it is stored in some place known only to the eccentric owner.

Many amusing stories regarding Wines and his peculiar characteristics are told by those who knew him. Some of these were his disinclination to take a bath and his predilection for wearing several suits of clothes at one time. Although very eccentric and undoubtedly of unbalanced mentality, he was perfectly harmless, and would talk for hours upon the engrossing subject of Indian relics, this being a mania with him, and numerous instances are recalled when in response to a request to exhibit some of his collection he had appeared at the home of the interested one with several boxes of assorted trinkets and lingered until the small hours of the morning expiating upon the different articles and giving accounts of the manner in which he obtained them.

There is no question but that the collection gathered by Wines in the many years that he was addicted to the hobby, was very valuable, but whether any great portion of his collection was concealed in any of the forty boxes sold at auction, is a secret to be divulged only by those to whom they were knocked down by the constable.

OBITUARY

The funeral of the late John Henry Colegrove was held at eleven o'clock Monday forenoon with Rev. A. O. Sixrud officiating.

The deceased was born in Newport township on the twenty-sixth day of January, 1850, and died at his home east of Antioch on the eighteenth day of November, 1910, at the age of 60 years, 9 months and three days. He leaves to mourn his loss a widow and two children, one son Eugene and one daughter, Mrs. Bert Dunnill of Fox Lake, besides an aged mother, three brothers and three sisters.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to the kind friends who assisted us at the death and burial of our husband and father and especially those who contributed flowers and furnished music. Mrs. John Colegrove and Family

Candlesticks.
If you must use a candle in a hurry and cannot find a candlestick, try putting the candle into the neck of an empty bottle. If you can get one to fit approximately, it will serve quite as well. A little shaving with a penknife or melting with a match will fit the candle into a bottle a bit too small for it.

Point of Importance.
The home is the center of a man's and a woman's individual and personal activities, and it can and should be made the highest point in human culture.

THANKSGIVING WEDDING

Miss Mary Rogan and Joseph McKay are United in Marriage

At eleven o'clock Thanksgiving morning at St. Peter's church at this place was solemnized the wedding vows of Miss Mary Rogan of Antioch and Mr. Joseph McKay of Chicago. Rev. Father Lynch repeating the impressive words that united the happy couple.

The bride was dressed in white satin and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses, and the groom was attired in the conventional black. The bridal couple were attended by Miss May Carney as bride's maid who was attired in a gown of blue silk and also carried a bouquet of roses, and Mr. John McKay, brother of the groom as best man.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rogan who reside north east of town and is one of the most popular young ladies of the community. The groom, a resident of Chicago his entire life, is not extensively known here, but has made a number of friends in the vicinity who join with those of his bride in wishing the young couple an abundance of happiness and prosperity.

Mr. and Mrs. McKay will reside in Chicago, and left at once for that place where their home was in readiness for their reception.

THREE MEN ARE INJURED BY EXPLOSION

One man may die and two others are seriously injured as the result of an explosion of a Soo line freight locomotive near Burlington last Tuesday morning.

Those injured are Fred Lang, of Burlington, who is suffering from a broken leg and severe bruises and scalds about his head, face, and body, and so serious are his injuries that it is thought impossible for him to recover.

Frank Schumacher, of Fond du Lac was also badly scalded and while his burns are quite severe it is not at the present time thought that they will prove fatal.

The name of the third is unknown, and he like the other was badly scalded. The injured men were in the locomotive cab when the steam chest blew up. Lang was thrown out of the cab and the other two were scalded by the escaping steam. The train was under full headway at the time of the accident.

The injured men were taken to the Newell hospital at Racine for treatment.

QUICK EYES OF THE WOMEN

They Have Extraordinary Faculty for Seeing Many Things and Taking In Every Detail.

Women have the most extraordinary faculty for seeing a great many things at once. For instance, they will remember every detail of a person's dress, manner, and personal appearance, even to the color of the hair and eyes, after a mere glimpse. This power is rare with men in general, though some have cultivated it. The gift belongs pre-eminently to women, however, who will often, without effort, take away the most vivid impressions of people they have traveled with for a short time only and have never spoken to, or of people they have met by chance in the street.

Women's eyes need to be as keen as they are kindly. In her household all depends on them. Woman is the first to notice any little rift within the lute of home life, and failure in the health of those she loves and has the care of, any lapse from the accustomed, any trouble unexpressed that is making any one unhappy. More delicately balanced, more sensitive than man, her nature receives impressions which to those of a different, perhaps coarser, fiber would simply have no existence. Her intuition is at times divine.

The eyes of a good woman! How gently, how clearly, how truthfully they look out on life! How pleasantly on those they guard! Happy the homes that dwell in peace and security beneath the loving care of a true woman's eyes.

Ribbon Counter Tact.

Where They Balk.
The average man is truthful," says the Philosopher of Folly, "but not one man in fifty will tell you the real reason he wears a silk hat."

Giving Children Their Rights.
In this century we are not getting rid of obvious wrongs, but are giving the children obvious rights.

FLAMES ATTACK CHURCH

Wesley Chapel in the Town of Bristol Damaged by Fire on Friday Evening

THREE PERSONS INJURED

The Accidental Overturning of a Japanese
Lantern Given as Cause—Damages
Estimated at About $200

Wesley Chapel, the historic old Methodist church in the town of Bristol had a baptism of fire last Friday evening and it was only through the heroic efforts on the part of the members of the congregation that the church was saved from destruction. As a result of their efforts to subdue the fire three of the leaders, Rev. Lugg, pastor, Eugene Shuart and Frank Gethem are laid up with badly burned hands and arms and several others are suffering from minor injuries.

At the time of the fire the church was in festive attire as the night had been set apart for the holding of the annual Christmas bazaar by the ladies of the church.

The entire building had been decorated with Japanese lanterns, bunting and paper flowers, and other decorations of flammable nature had been placed about the structure, and in addition to this there were hundreds of small articles that had been placed on sale. The fire broke out about an hour before the time set for the opening of the sale and at the time there were less than a dozen people there adding the finishing touches and preparing for the entertainment of the crowd.

The lanterns had been lighted when one of them was accidentally overturned and in a second the flames had spread to all parts of the church. At a risk of their lives the pastor and those present tore down the burning decorations in an effort to stop the spread of the flames. The frantic ringing of the church bell summoned the entire neighborhood and in a short time help had arrived and the flames were extinguished. However the fancy decorations had all been destroyed and the permanent decorations badly damaged.

Rev. Lugg received the most serious burns, and Dr. Stephens was called to dress them, and the pastor expects to be able to fill his pulpit as usual by next Sunday, although it will be some time before he is fully recovered.

Most of the fancy articles were saved and the fire did not put an end to the festivities of the evening, and it is said that this was the most successful bazaar ever held there.

The damage by fire amounted to about two hundred dollars and was fully covered by insurance.

ANNUAL BAZAAR AND SALE

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. church will give their annual bazaar and supper in the church basement on Thursday, December 8, during the afternoon and evening. A various assortment of fancy articles, aprons, etc., will be on sale and the usual chicken pie supper will be served. The sale will open at three o'clock and supper will be served from five o'clock on. Price, adults 25 cents, children 15.

The Courage of Captain Plum

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

SYNOPSIS.

Capt. Nathaniel Plum of the sloop Typhoon, lands secretly on Beaver Island, stronghold of the Mormons. Obadiah Price, Mormon counselor, confronts him, tells him he is expected, and bargains for the ammunition aboard the sloop. He binds Nat by a solemn oath to deliver a package to Franklin Pierce, president of the United States. Near Price's cabin Nat sees the frightened face of a young woman who disappears in the darkness, leaving an odor of lilacs. It develops that Nat's visit to the island is to demand settlement of the king, Strang, for the looting of his sloop by Mormons. Price shows Nat the king's palace, and through a window he sees the lady of the lilacs, who Price says is the king's seventh wife. Calling at the king's office Nat is warned by a young woman that his life is in danger. Strang professes indignation when he hears Nat's grievance and promises to punish the guilty. Nat rescues Nell, who is being publicly whipped, and the king orders the sheriff, Arbor Croche, to pursue and kill the two men. Plum learns that the girl of the lilacs is Nell's sister. The two men plan to escape on Nat's sloop and take Marion and Winnie, daughter of Arbor Croche, and sweetheart of Nell. Nat discovers that the sloop is gone. Marion tells him that his ship has been seized by the Mormons. She begs him to leave the island, telling him that nothing can save her from Strang, whom she is doomed to marry. Plum finds Price raving mad. Recovering, he tells Nat that Strang is doomed, that armed men are descending on the island. Nat learns that Marion has been summoned to the castle by Strang.

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

"I love Marion," she breathed softly. "I would help you—I would help her—if I could." For a moment her pale beautiful face was filled with a light that might have shone from the face of an angel. "Don't you understand?" she continued, scarcely above a whisper. "I have been Strang's one great love—his life—until Marion came into his heart. I have lost—you have lost—but mine is the more bitter because Marion loves you, and Strang—"

With a cry Nathaniel sprang to her side. The candle fell from his hand, sputtered on the floor, and left them in darkness.

"Marion loves me! You say that Marion loves me?"

The woman's voice came to him in a whisper filled with the sweetness of sympathy.

"She said so tonight—in this room. She told me that she loved you as the never thought that she could love a man in this world. O, my God, is that not a balm for your heart, if it is broken? And Strang—my Strang—has forgotten his love for me!"

Nathaniel reached out his arms. They found the woman and for a time he held her hands in his, while a great silence fell upon them. He could hear the sobbing of her breath and as her fingers tightened about his own his heart seemed bursting with its hatred of this man who called himself a prophet of God; a hatred that burned furiously even as his being throbbled with the wild joys of the words he had just heard.

"Where is Marion?" he pleaded.

"I don't know," replied the woman. "They took her away alone. The others have gone to the temple."

"Do you think she is at the temple?" he inquired insistently.

"No. One of the others came back a little while ago. She said that Marion was not there."

"Where is Strang?"

"This time he felt the woman tremble."

"Strang—"

She drew her hands away from him. There was a strange quiver in her voice.

"Yes—where is Strang?"

There came no reply.

"Tell me—where is he?"

"I don't know."

"Is he at the temple?"

"I don't know."

He could hear her stifled breath; he could almost feel her trembling, in arm's reach out there in the darkness. What a woman was this whose heart the Mormon king had broken for a new love!

"Listen," he said gently. "I am going to find Marion. I am going to take her away. Tomorrow you shall have Strang again—if he is alive!"

There was no answer and he moved slowly back to the door. He closed it after him as he entered the hall, once in the big room he paused for a moment under the hanging lamp to examine his pistol and then went outside. The grove in which the castle stood was absolutely deserted. So far as he could see not even a guard watched over the property of the king. Nathaniel had become too accustomed to the surprises of Beaver Island to wonder at this. He could see by the lights flaring along the harbor that the castle was in an isolated position and easy of attack. From what Strang's wife had told him and the evidences of panic in the chambers of the harem he believed that the Mormon king had abandoned the castle to its fate and that the approaching conflict would center about the temple.

Was Marion at the temple? If so he realized that she was beyond his reach. But the woman had said that she was not there. Where could she have gone? Why had not Strang taken her with his wives? In a flash Nathaniel thought of Arbor Croche and Obadiah—the two men who always knew what the king was doing. If he could find the sheriff alone—if he could only nurse Obadiah back into sane life again! He thrust his pistol into its holster. There was but one thing for him to do and that was to return to the old counselor. It would be madness for him to go down to St. James. He had lost—Strang had won. But his love for Marion was undying. If he found her Strang's wife it would make no difference to him. It would at least be evened up when he killed the king. For Marion loved him—loved him—

He turned his face toward Obadiah's, his heart singing the glad words which the woman had spoken to him back there in the sixth chamber.

And as he was about to take the first step in that long race back to the mad counselor he heard behind him the approach of quick feet. He crouched behind a clump of bushes and waited. A shadowy form was hurrying through the grove. It passed close to him, mounted the castle steps, and in the doorway turned and looked back for an instant in the direction of St. James.

Nathaniel's lips quivered; the pounding of his heart half choked him; a shriek of mad, terrible joy was ready to leap from his lips.

There in the dim glow of the great lamp stood Strang, the Mormon king.

CHAPTER IX.

The Hand of Fate.

Like a panther Nathaniel crouched and watched the man on the steps. His muscles jerked, his hands were clenched; each instant he seemed about to spring. But he held himself back until Strang had passed through the door. Then he slipped along the log wall of the castle, hugging the shadows, fearing that the king might reappear and see him in time to close the door. What an opportunity fate had made for him! His fingers itched to get at Strang's thick bull-like throat. He felt no fear, no hesitation about the outcome of the struggle with this giant prophet of God. He did not plan to shoot, for a shot would destroy the secret of Marion's fate. He would choke the truth from Strang; rob him of life slowly, gasp by gasp, until in the horror of death the king would reveal her hiding place—would tell what he had done with her.

His Fingers Twined About the Purplish Throat.

Then he would kill him!

There was the strength of tempered steel in his arms; his body, slender as an athlete's, quivered to hurl itself into action. Up the steps he crept so cautiously that he made no sound. In the intensity of his purpose Nathaniel looked only ahead of him—to the door. He did not see that another figure was stealing through the gloom behind him as cautiously, as quietly as himself.

He passed through the door and stood erect. Strang had not seen him. He had not heard him. He was standing with his huge back toward him, facing the hall that led to the sixth chamber—and the woman. Nathaniel drew his pistol. He would not shoot, but Strang might be made to tell the truth with death leveling itself at his heart. He groped behind him, found the door, and slammed it shut. There would be no retreat for the king!

And the man who turned toward him at the slamming of that door, turned slowly, coolly, and gazed into the black muzzle of his pistol looked, indeed, every inch of him a king. The muscles of his face betrayed no surprise, no fear. His splendid nerve was unshaken, his eyes unflinching as they rose above the pistol to the face behind it. For fifteen seconds there was a strange terrible silence as the eyes of the two men met. In that quarter of a minute Nathaniel knew that he had not guessed rightly. Strang was not afraid. He would not tell him where Marion was. The insuperable courage of this man had denied Captain Plum and unconsciously his finger fell upon the trigger of his pistol. He almost shrieked the words that he meant to speak calmly:

"Where is Marion?"

"She is safe, Captain Plum. She is where the friends who are invading us from the mainland will have no chance of finding her."

Strang spoke as quietly as though in his own office beside the temple. Suddenly he raised his voice.

"She is safe, Captain Plum—safe!"

His eyes wavered, and traveled beyond. As accurately as a striking serpent Nathaniel measured that glance. It had gone to the door. He heard a movement, felt a draft of air, and in an instant he whirled about with his pistol pointed to the door. In another instant he had fired and the huge form of Arbor Croche toppled headlong into the room. A roar like that of a beast came from behind him and before he could turn again Strang was upon him. In that moment he felt that all was lost. Under the weight of the Mormon king he was crushed to the floor; his pistol slipped from his grasp; two great hands choked a despairing cry from his throat. He saw the prophet's face over him, distorted with passion, his huge neck bulging, his eyes flaming like angry garnets. He struggled to free his pinioned arms, to wrench off the death grip at his throat, but his efforts were like those of a child against a giant.

In a last terrible attempt he drew up his knees inch by inch under the weight of his enemy; it was his only chance—his only hope. Even as he felt the fingers about his throat sinking like hot iron into his flesh and the breath slipping from his body he remembered this murderous kneepunch of the rough fighters of the inland seas and with all the life that remained in him he sent it crushing into the abdomen of the Mormon king.

It was a moment before he knew that it had been successful, before the film cleared from his eyes and he saw Strang groveling at his feet; another moment and he hurled himself on the prophet. His fist shot out like a hammer against Strang's jaw. Again and again he struck until the great shaggy head fell back limp. Then his fingers twined themselves like the links of a chain about the purplish throat and he choked until Strang's eyes opened wide and lifeless and his convulsions ceased. He would have held on until there was no doubt of the end, had not the king's wife—the woman whose misery he had shared that night—suddenly flung herself with a piercing cry, between him and the blackened face, clutching at his hands with all her fragile strength.

"My God, you are killing him—killing him!" she moaned.

Her eyes blazed as she tore at his fingers.

"You are killing him—killing him!" she shrieked. "He has not destroyed Marion! You said you would take her and leave him—for me—"

She struck her head against his breast, tearing the flesh of his wrists with her nails. Nathaniel loosened his grip and staggered to his feet.

"For you!" he panted. "If you had only come a little sooner—" He stumbled to his pistol and picked it up. "I am afraid he is—dead!"

He did not look back.

Arbor Croche barred the door. He had not moved since he had fallen. His head was twisted so that his face was turned to the glow of the lamp and Nathaniel shuddered as he saw where his shot had struck. He had apparently died with that last cry on his lips.

There was no longer a fear of the Mormons in Nathaniel. He believed the king and Arbor Croche dead, and that in the gloom and excitement of the night he could go among the people of St. James undiscovered. A great load was lifted from his soul, for if he had not been in time to save Marion he had at least delivered her after a short bondage. He had now only to save Marion and she would go with him, for she loved him—and Strang was no more.

He hurried through the grove toward the temple. Even before he had come near to it he could see that a great crowd had congregated there. The street which he passed was deserted. No lights shone in the houses. Even the dogs were gone. For the first time he understood what it meant. The whole town had fled to that huge log stronghold for protection. Buildings and trees shut out his view seaward but he could see the flare of great fires mounting into the sky and he knew that those who were not at the temple were guarding the shore.

Do Birds Return to Old Nests?

Whether birds, especially migratory ones, return to the same nests year after year is a question of much interest to the naturalist. Swallows that summer in England do not winter north of Africa, but an observer at High Halden, Kent, England, has recorded that one returned on April 12 to a nest it occupied last year. It was recognized by a ring that had been placed on its leg. To gain a better knowledge of bird habits, more than 2,000 British birds were last year marked with inscribed aluminum rings, and twice as many more will be similarly tagged this year.

Canada Needs Rat-Traps.

According to Consul General Jones at Winnipeg, Canada is in great need of rat traps. Farmers in the grain belt are becoming anxious over the invasion of rodents and are willing and able to pay a good price for a trap that will combine durability and efficiency.

Green Purchaser—Perhaps it is pneumatic. I thought it was called rheumatic because it's swelled.

A Thanksgiving Prayer

"I beseech you to cease to regret your lack of prosperity. Thank God you have work and struggle before you."

—J. D. Rockefeller, Jr.

I thank Thee, Lord,
That I have not
A golden hoard
In some safe spot,
And don't hold sway
In any state
Where juries may Investigate.

O, I rejoice
At this great boon;
I lift my voice
In thankful tune
That from my lack
I almost starve,
For canvas back
I cannot carve.

I am so glad
Indeed, that I
Have never had
The cash to buy
A palace grand
Or castle great
Or miles of land
For my estate.

It is to me
A lasting joy,
One that shall be Without alloy
That I may jump
Into the ditch
While autos bump
By, with the rich.

My heart is thrilled
With gratitude,
My bosom filled
With thankful mood,
Because I'm sure
It now appears,
I shall be poor
Through all my years!

A Turkey That Talked

Thanksgiving Story by Reba C. Barkley

HE little southern resort looked fair and fresh in the robe of evergreen, with which it defied the autumn. Roses bloomed and birds sang in riotous disregard of the fact that next Thursday would be Thanksgiving.

The "natives" paid scant attention to it, any way, and the "hotel" population took advantage of the occasion to be more ailing and homesick than common.

A tall, old gentleman walked down the street coughing at intervals. He looked at the blue sky and laughing landscape with disapproval, for he was ill and lonely and out of tune with nature.

He looked curiously at an old colonial house standing well back from the street; irregular flower beds bloomed at odd places in the grounds, live oaks grew almost anywhere, and merry, beautiful children romped under them. A small boy swung placidly upon the gate.

Judge Holcombe stopped a moment to cough, and the small boy disengaged himself from the gate.

"I'm sorry you're sick," he said, with grave politeness. "Mother says we must always invite the 'coughers' to come in and rest. There's a bench under the live oak trees and I'll get you a glass of milk or a glass of wine. Every winter the sick folks come to the hotel and they get to like stopping here awfully well. I reckon they are lonesome and homesick."

The judge breathed heavily again and the southern gentleman, after the manner of his kind, dropped word for deeds. He took the gaunt old hand in his little warm one and "personally conducted" the visitor through the gate to the nearest bench.

"I'll send one of the children for refreshments," he continued comfortably, "and I'll entertain you. It wouldn't be polite to leave you alone."

In response to his summons a group of children appeared leading among them a huge gobbler. The bird seemed very much at home and emitted the peculiar cry of his kind.

"That turkey can talk," the boy explained. "He's saying, 'Look at me, I'm chosen above all other turkeys for a great day; I'm it.' We can't bear to have our pets killed, but father says that a turkey that's chosen for Thanksgiving is the proudest thing in the world and he'd be disappointed if he didn't get to come to the table."

He turned his attention to his sister.

"Little sis, please go in and ask mother or nanny to bring out a glass of milk or a glass of wine for this visitor. I don't go myself for fear he'll run away."

The judge presented his right hand limply to the girl (the boy was still clasping his left) and a sudden thrill swept over him. The physical contact of loving, palpitating childhood called to him with the voice of nature.

At this juncture a graceful figure carrying a tray appeared upon the walk. Her resemblance to the little girl proclaimed the mother. Her manner was as cordial as the boy's.

"Good evening, sir," she said (although it was only 4 o'clock in the afternoon). "My son has been fortunate enough to make your acquaintance. I see, Dimples, bring up the table."

The judge rose and bowed and stammered something, while the boy brought from behind the tree a wobbly rustic stand upon which his mother put the tray.

Conversation became general and for the first time in his life Judge Holcombe shone at an impromptu entertainment. He paid the lady old-fashioned compliments upon her home and her children—upon the milk and the wine, both of which he recklessly drank and finally added: "Dimples—Dimples—dear me—quite an extraordinary name for a boy, is it not? But I like it!"

Her low, sweet laughter answered him: "Oh, his real name is not Dimples. It is a pet name. We southern people are given to them. It seems such a pity, his father says, for a boy to have all the dimples instead of his sister."

"I never thought much about dimples," the judge replied, "but now that my attention is called to the matter, I must say that I think they are decidedly attractive in boys. I think it is a misfortune they are not more generally practised—I mean possessed."

His host beamed upon the company.

"You see, mother, he can talk very nicely. I knew he would after he got acquainted. He was only bashful at first."

The judge had a wide reputation as an after dinner speaker and his political orations were not unknown to fame, but this tribute of his new friend touched him more than the encomiums of the press. He exerted himself to interest the lady and the child, and after a delightful half hour rose to take his leave.

"Madam," he said, "you have given me a unique experience, a practical exhibition of the southern hospitality of which we hear so much. My name is Holcombe."

Dimples pricked up his ears.

"Oh, mother! Mother, he's got my middle name. Maybe we can claim kin."

"What is your full name?" the old man cried with an odd break in his voice.

"Jeremiah Holcombe Grey. Father calls me Jerry when I'm good and when I'm bad he calls me Jeremiah Jr. and says I'm like—"

"Hush, Dimples," his mother interrupted, but the visitor's face had lighted up with a radiance which took ten years ago.

"When you're bad he call it 'raising Cain' doesn't he? That was an ancient phrase of your father's when he was a naughty boy himself—and he tells you you are like old Jeremiah Holcombe, who wished to adopt him as his own son, in whose office he studied law and with whom he foolishly quarreled years ago. Madam, it was once part of my day dreams that there should be some time upon this earth a boy named Jeremiah Holcombe Grey. Strangely that my dream should have been fulfilled today at an hour when life seemed to hold nothing for me."

She would have spoken, the warm light of understanding flooding her beautiful face, but he raised his hand.

"Not now. When your husband returns tell him that there is a lonely old man at the hotel who longs to know that by-gones may be by-gones. Tell him to forgive me and let me forgive him."

Thanksgiving at the Grey's that year surpassed itself. It was rumored all through the place that Judge Grey had found some of his northern kin at the hotel, that the "Kin" was also a judge, and that after years of estrangement peace was about to be established.

On this occasion Judge Holcombe made the speech of his life. He asked Dimples to stand up with him.

"It is usual," he said, "under circumstances such as these to begin with generalities and work round to the personal. I will therefore begin with the turkey, 'the turkey that talked,' for it showed me that my boy, Edward Grey, had not quite hardened his heart against his old state of Massachusetts. He was still celebrating—Thanksgiving—her one day of pride and glory—as his ancestors did. He had not forgotten, even in these happier surroundings, the stern old man who loved him, for his only son bears the name of Jeremiah Holcombe. I am emboldened to ask a favor once refused, Edward Grey—you refused to let me adopt you in the days that are gone—may I adopt your whole family now?"

"With all my heart, Uncle Jeremiah, as they say in the south, every last one of us!"

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

STOMACH MISERY VANISHES

Indigestion, Gas, Sourness and Dyspepsia Go and Your Stomach Feels Fine in Five Minutes.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn or a sick, sour, upset or gassy stomach, that is a sign of indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapiesin and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal Griping. This will all go, and besides, there will be no undigested food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapiesin is certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store here in town.

These large 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapiesin contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Gastritis or any other stomach disturbance.

Kidding Worse Than Cutting.

Talk about making good with your friends, a New Orleans man told everybody he knew that he was going to Philadelphia for the dual purpose of seeing the world's baseball series and having a slight surgical operation performed. Reaching this city, he consulted a specialist, and was told that an operation was not necessary.

"But, doctor," the New Orleans party urgently interposed. "It must be done."

"Why must it?" wonderingly queried the surgeon.

"Because," was the startling rejoinder of the Southern man, "I told all the boys at home that I was going to have an operation performed, and if I don't make good they will kill the life out of me."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

On the Senators.

The wit of Bishop Seth Ward amuses Nashville frequently.

Bishop Ward, in company with two senators, came forth from a Nashville reception the other day and entered a waiting motor car.

"Ah, bishop," said one of his companions, "you are not like your minister. He was content to ride an ass."

"Yes, and so should I be," Bishop Ward answered, "but there's no such animal to be got nowadays. They make them all senators."

CARRYING GOSPEL TO MINERS

Pittsburg Evangelists Have Novel Plan for Religious Work in the Depths of the Earth.

The carrying of the Gospel hundreds of feet underground to miners toiling in the darkness and gloom with their picks and shovels is the latest scheme of the Pittsburg evangelistic committee.

This movement is without precedent in the history of the religious world. It will be enthusiastically backed by more than a score of men prominent in the business, financial and professional walks of life of that city.

No mine in the Pittsburg district will be overlooked. It is expected to have a large enough band of workers engaged to enable the committee to take the Gospel down the various shafts before long. It is expected to have the Gospel workers enter the mines during the mining hours and make their way through the various passages, leaving pamphlets and cards with the workers.

At the noon hour an open air meeting will be held. Addresses will be made to the miners in different tongues by evangelists of their own nationality.

Approaching a Walled City.

After the drab outskirts of Pisa, the Maremma and the dyked road, I gained Cascina, a walled, arcaded town at the limit of the Vico Pisano, gray within a red husk of walls, inexhaustibly picturesque; then came Pontedera, walled again—and with each a thrill. That is a thing you may count upon—that flutter of expectancy and its full reward whenever you approach a walled town by road. By road, observe, but not otherwise. Seen thus, the wall must be negotiated; you must pass through the gates with other wayfarers. A walled city is like a veiled bride. What is one about to embrace? There are no gradations, no straggling line of suburbs to water down the type before you reach the heart. The truth is flashed upon you, plump and plain. You leave the fields, you clear the gates—here is Cascina, here Pontedera for good or ill.—From Hewlett's "The Road in Tuscany."

Tough on the Germ.

Parents who own the mean little small boy with the frightful grouch of childhood, the little boy who screams when others smile and who kicks his fond parents on the shins and screams when they are trying to do something nice for him, the little boy who affects all other people with a burning, gnawing passion to smite him on the spot with an elmwood clapboard, not padded, should take courage. Their little boy, says Dr. E. L. Mathias of Kansas City, is the victim of the grouch germ. A real germ is pasturing on him, making him meaner than dirt and crosser than a tied-up dog.

Well, perhaps.

Primitive Life Saving.

Expedients for saving life and limb among the poor are many and original. "Why do you stretch your clothes line so close to the wall?" said a new customer who had poked her head through the washerwoman's back window to see what kind of a place she had to dry the clothes in. "The things will flop against the side of the house and get dirty."

"Oh, miss, that rope ain't for the clothes," said the woman. "It is for the baby to fall on in case he tumbles out of the window."

A Natural Presumption.

When Edna's mother wished the little girl many happy returns of the day on the morning of her fifth birthday, the child said thoughtfully: "I'm five years old today and now, I s'pose I'll just keep on being five and five and five every day, till I'm six."

WILD ANIMALS AND CATNIP

Lions and Leopards in the Zoo Were as Delighted With It as Is the Domestic Cat.

A curious investigator and a few sprigs of catnip led to an amusing scene at the zoo in Cincinnati.

The tigers and puma scornfully refused to notice the herb when it was presented to them by the keeper, but the lion, the lioness and the big leopard were bolsters in their manifestations of pleasure. The lion planted a foot upon it, smelled it, licked it, sprang upon it and tossed it about in ways unbecoming his kingly dignity. The leopard picked it up in her huge paw, took long and ecstatic sniffs and rolled over and over upon it in the exuberance of her delight. In her efforts to apply it to the upper part of her head she performed acrobatic feats of an astonishing kind. From his experiment the investigator was satisfied that love of catnip is not confined to the domestic branch of the cat family.

The Superfluities.

Let me tell you that Diogenes walked on a day with a friend to see a country fair, where he saw ribbons and looking glasses, and nut-crackers, and fiddles, and hobby horses, and many other gimcracks, and having observed them and all the other finimbrums that make a complete country fair, he said to his friend, "Lord, how many things there are in this world!"—From Isaac Walton's Compendium of which Diogenes hath no plete Angler.

Children's Dresses.

A good idea for mothers who like to have souvenirs of their little one's childhood is to paste in a book samples from every new dress or suit, with a picture of the pattern if possible. Not only is this interesting for both mothers and children in time to come, but it forms a valuable history of costumes for the period, and is of practical service as well as insuring variety in dress from year to year.

Valuable Advice.

"You are always asking me for advice, but you never seem to take any that I give." "I know it. You see, I am frequently in doubt, before I consult you, as to what is the best thing not to do."

Always Happens.

A man who goes around with a chip on his shoulder will finally encounter as big a fool as he is, and there will be a fight.—Atchison Globe.

Contemplation as a Part of Life.

We are in such haste to be doing, to be writing, to be gathering gear, to make our voice audible a moment in the derisive silence of eternity, that we forget the one thing, of which these are but the parts—namely, to live. We fall in love, we drink hard, we run to and fro upon the earth like frightened sheep. And now you are to ask yourself if, when all is done, you would not have been better to sit by the fire at home, and be happy, thinking. To sit still and contemplate—to remember the faces of women without desire, to be pleased with the great needs of men without envy, to be everything and everywhere in sympathy—is not this to know both wisdom and virtue and to dwell with happiness?—From Robert Louis Stevenson's "Walking Tours."

Fruit of a Good Life.

When you see an old man amiable, mild, equable, content, and good-humored, be sure that in his youth he has been just, generous and forbearing. In his end he does not lament the past nor dread the future; he is like the evening of a fine day.

Point Worth Considering.

The youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Verrier was quite severely burned on its hands Sunday afternoon. The father had been fixing the fire, and had laid the almost red hot poker in the coal hod, when the little one unnoticed crept up and grasped the hot iron in both hands. The burns were severe enough to necessitate the attendance of a physician.

The physicians at the Oak Park hospital last week decided that the case of little George Shannon of Channel, who was severely burned a short time ago by the explosion of a kerosene lamp filled with gasoline was one where the operation of skin grafting would be necessary. His eldest brother, Elsworth volunteered to sacrifice a part of his skin for the benefit of the injured boy. The operation was performed the first of last week and at the present time is thought to have been a success.

One Charm or woman. ## REVOLT IN MEXICO

FORTY ARE KILLED IN BATTLE AGAINST DIAZ'S SOLDIERS.

WOMAN SLAYS POLICE CHIEF

Puebla, Seething With Rebellion, Is Scene of the Clash—Francisco Madero, Head of Revolutionary Party, Claims the Presidency.

Mexico City, Mex.—Revolution broke out Friday in the city of Puebla between the anti-revolutionists and the federal forces and it is reported that 40 persons were killed and three wounded. The federal soldiers have gotten the upper hand of the affair.

A woman killed the chief of police and another wounded a major of infantry.

Many arrests of supporters of Francisco I. Madero, the revolutionary leader, are being made all over Mexico.

Eleven Mexicans were arrested at Buena Vista and lodged in jail at Cananea charged with attempting to foment a revolution.

At Orizaba numerous arrests were made and the police captured a large quantity of arms and ammunition.

Details of the anti-Diaz conspiracy have come to light. The conspirators had extended their operations to the state of Vera Cruz, Hidalgo, Coahuila, San Luis Potosi, Nuevo Leon, Puebla, Jalisco, Guanajuato, Yucatan and Zacatecas. Circulars sent out by Madero or his agents from San Antonio, Tex., outline his campaign and announce Madero as constitutional president of Mexico. The manifesto reads:

"I, Francisco I. Madero, will place myself at the head of a revolutionary party against the government of Mexico. Between the 20th and 30th of November I shall lead my followers against the government of Mexico."

Of the men arrested here for complicity in the conspiracy one, Cosme Robelo carried a commission from Madero naming him as governor of the state of Hidalgo.

No anti-American talk is being heard now.

"It is true a conspiracy against the administration has been unearthed, but it is a mistake to suppose that the participants, who have been arrested are of any importance."

So said one of the highest officials of the government. The official, whose name is withheld, continued:

"The men under arrest are petty agitators and malcontents, who have affiliated themselves with every group which in the last year or so has organized opposition to President Diaz's administration. These men were first Raylists, then Democrats, then anti-revolutionists; more recently they have been supporters of Francisco I. Madero, who is suspected of supplying them with money."

"They are incapable and have no prestige or any quality necessary to successful leadership. The present conspiracy had ramifications. The police seized arms and ammunition worth perhaps $5,000 or $8,000 in this city, at Pachuca and elsewhere."

Francisco Madero was a candidate against Diaz at the late presidential election in Mexico. Madero was arrested then for a "political offense" and jailed. He was released last month on condition that he leave Mexico. He hurried to Texas.

COMMONS RAIDED BY WOMEN

Militant Suffragettes Storm British Parliament and 116 Are Arrested After Lively Fight.

London.—One hundred and sixteen of the 1,000 militant suffragettes who marched on the parliament building were arrested after a lively fight with the police.

Led by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the women made a determined attempt to force the police cordon about the house of commons and, reaching Premier Asquith, to insist upon the introduction of a woman's suffrage bill.

The women made every effort with their power to break the lines, bringing into play some rare military strategy and football tactics. Fighters in the front ranks retired many times to make way for fresh reserves, but the police were too strongly entrenched. Orders had been given the officers to make as few arrests as possible, but it soon became necessary to jail as many of the women as could be captured. After Parliament Square had been cleared the three leaders of the demonstration, led by Mrs. Pankhurst, were permitted to enter the lobby of the house of commons, where they were met by Mr. Asquith's secretary and informed that the premier would not see them and said that there was no chance for a suffrage bill at the present session.

Oldest Frisco Employee Dead.
Kansas City, Mo.—Ezekiel T. Cox, the oldest employee of the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad, both in years and point of service, died here Saturday at the age of eighty-one. He had worked for the railway 18 years.

Tennessee Liquor Law Held Valid.
Knoxville, Tenn.—The state supreme court Saturday held the four-mile liquor law enacted by the legislature of Tennessee in 1909 to be constitutional.

LANDIS OUT OF MEAT CASES

DECLINES TO HEAR CHANGE OF VENUE ARGUMENT.

Judge Declares It "Impossible" for Him to Preside at Beef Trust Trials.

Chicago.—The packers won first blood when Judge Kenesaw M. Landis ruled that he could not hear the cases pending against J. Ogden Armour and others charged with violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

He announced to attorneys appearing before him in the United States district court who sought a change of venue in the case against Chicago meat packers, that he would be unable to hear the case in any event, and irrespective of argument for or against such a course, either by attorneys for the government or those for the packers.

The announcement was made during a lull in arguments in the effort of the packers to have the case transferred to the United States circuit court. The packers are charged with conspiracy to restrain trade, and are specifically charged with having formed the so-called "beef trust" in the shape of the National Packing company.

Judge Landis gave no hint of his possible action on the venue argument. It lies within his power to refuse certification to the circuit court, and, instead, to transfer it, as dean of the district court, to another district judge, particularly Judge Carpenter.

Shortly after his announcement, Judge Landis put off till November 23 further arguments. The question at issue is, Shall Judge Landis certify to the circuit court the whole case against the packers, or will he refuse such certification, compelling the defendants to accept trial before a district judge?

Judge Landis explained his refusal to sit in the case. "Considering the character and nature of the defendant's averment and the proximity in point of time of my employment as a member of this bar as agent of the department of justice, as at least the beginning of the period respecting which the grand jurors heard evidence, regardless of the technical proposition involved, it becomes obvious I cannot hear the case," he said. "I will send the case to my colleague in the district court, Judge Carpenter."

STANDARD OIL WINS CASE

Indiana Concern Is Declared Not Guilty by Jury Through Instruction of Judge.

Jackson, Tenn.—Judge John B. McCall of the United States district court Thursday instructed the jury in the case of the government against the Standard Oil company of Indiana to return a verdict of not guilty.

Judge McCall sustained the contention of counsel for the defendant that the United States had failed to prove the allegations set forth in the indictment. The oil company has been on trial for a week charged with receiving freight rate concessions in violation of the so-called Elkins law.

The Tennessee suit against the Standard Oil company of Indiana was one of a number of federal attacks based on anti-rebate laws to be inaugurated by the department of justice under the Roosevelt administration, and the line of prosecution followed in a number of significant details the case in which a $29,000,000 fine was imposed by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis in Chicago, only to be set aside by the federal court of appeals.

HENRY M. HOYT PASSES AWAY

State Department Counsellor Dies of Peritonitis After Illness Lasting But Four Days.

Washington.—Henry M. Hoyt, counsellor of the state department, died here Sunday of peritonitis after an illness of only four days.

Mr. Hoyt was graduated from Yale in President Taft's class, 1878. Mr. Hoyt has just concluded the preliminary work at Ottawa for the reciprocity treaty between the United States and Canada. He held the position of solicitor general at the department of justice, in which he was succeeded a year ago by the late Lloyd Bowers.

STOCK FIRM RAIDED

FEDERAL OFFICERS INVADEN BURR BROTHERS' OFFICES IN NEW YORK CITY.

NATION-WIDE FRAUD CHARGE

Post Office Officials Claim Concern Have Defrauded Investors Out of Forty to Fifty Millions in Sale of Stocks.

New York.—Federal officials Monday raided the quarters of Burr Bros., a corporation dealing in stocks and other securities, with offices in Chicago and other cities.

The raid was made on warrants charging use of the mails to defraud investors. Post office officials said the concern had sold to investors at par value between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 of stock in various companies, most of which had gone out of existence or become bankrupt.

Officers of the corporation were arrested and its books and papers seized.

The raid was planned by Post Office Inspector Warren W. Dickson. Postmaster General Frank H. Hitchcock and Robert S. Sharpe, chief post office inspector, who came from Washington to see that it was carried out successfully.

The officers arrested were Sheldon C. Burr, president; Frank H. Tobey, vice-president, and Eugene H. Burr, secretary and treasurer. The three officials were arraigned before Commissioner Shields and held in $20,000 bail each. Pending the furnishing of bail the officials of the company were placed in the prisoners' pen.

Arrests are expected to be made in Cleveland, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco, where the corporation has extensive offices.

Post office officials had been working on the case for months. Hundreds of complaints had been made against the corporation by investors who charged they had been swindled through false representations concerning the profits being realized by those who put money into the various oil, timber, copper, lead, zinc and gold ventures.

After the raid Postmaster General Hitchcock gave out an official memorandum concerning the Burr Bros., which was organized several years ago, and in 1907 was incorporated with a capital of $100,000, later increased to $300,000. The memorandum says that among other companies the Burr brothers were selling the stock of the Bulk Oil company, a concern with $5,000,000 capital.

RENEW RIOTING AT PUEBLA

Reported 30 Are Killed—United States Troops Sent to Border to Protect Americans.

Laredo, Tex.—Reports reaching this city from what is considered to be a reliable source are to the effect that rioting was renewed in Puebla, Mex., Monday and that 30 persons were killed in the fighting.

It is said on the streets here that the Mexican military authorities are conspiring large numbers of the residents of Nuevo Laredo into the army for emergency service.

United States troops have been sent to the border to be stationed at many points to protect Americans.

Washington.—Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Hoyt, commander of the department of Texas, has been instructed by the war department to hold troops in readiness to meet any call made by the governor of Texas to preserve neutrality on the part of the United States in connection with the revolt in Mexico.

Belated telegrams reaching the state department from its officials in Mexico mention various revolutionary disturbances at different points in that country, but all agree in one respect, and that is that the Diaz government is strong enough to repress the revolutionists.

A report from Marathon, Tex., states that revolutionists are gathering in Chihuahua State, south of Marfa, and are preparing to attack Chihuahua City. The regions thereabouts are sparsely settled.

A report from El Paso, Tex., says that 100 persons had been killed in riots which took place at Zacatecas in the interior of Mexico, opposite Tampico.

It is reported that riots have taken place at Alizee, seventy miles south in Mexico, and several killed there.

Eagle Pass, Tex.—"General Bernardo Reyes is coming." This is the whisper which has gone with telegraphic swiftness up and down the Rio Grande. If it is true, as many Mexicans assert, it means that the revolutionists have at their head a man superior in military training to any other man in Mexico, not even excepting President Diaz himself.

Inventor Gets Rich Reward.
San Francisco.—The first payment of a total of $17,000,000 which is to be turned over to George Gates, a seventy-year-old G. A. R. veteran of San Jose, who invented the concrete railroad tie, is now in escrow in the Crocker National bank. A syndicate of eastern railroads has been formed to buy the patent rights of the San Jose man and $500,000 was given to him when the contract was signed Tuesday and by January 2, 1911, the total of $17,000,000 will be placed to his account.

At the One Horse.
Jere L. Sullivan, the head of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees' International Alliance, said in Cincinnati, apropos of Labor day:

"Our American hotels are better than they used to be, and for this betterment my organization deserves no little credit."

"We have today no such hotels as the One Horse of Tin Can, where, if you asked for a bath, they used to give you a shovel and tell you to go down to the hollow and dam the creek."

"An English earl once visited the One Horse hotel. The landlord went out ceremony led him outside, pointed to a window on the fifth floor, and said:

"That's yer room."

Schurz Was Sure of Him.
Carl Schurz was dining one night with a man who had written a book of poems, so called, and who was pleased with himself.

The poet was discoursing on the time-worn topic of politics of the men who take office.

"I consider politics and politicians beneath my notice," he said. "I do not care for office. I wouldn't be a senator or cabinet officer, and I doubt if I could be tempted by the offer of the presidency. For the matter of that, I would rather be known as a third-rate poet than a first-rate statesman."

"Well, aren't you?" Schurz shouted at him.

HEALTH AND INCOME
Both Kept Up on Scientific Food.

Good sturdy health helps one a lot to make money.

With the loss of health one's income is liable to shrink, if not entirely dwindle away.

When a young lady has to make her own living, good health is her best asset.

"I am alone in the world," writes a Chicago girl, "dependent on my own efforts for my living. I am a clerk, and about two years ago through close application to work and a boarding-house diet, I became a nervous invalid, and got so bad off it was almost impossible for me to stay in the office a half day at a time."

"A friend suggested to me the idea of trying Grape-Nuts food which I did, making it a large part of at least two meals a day."

"Today, I am free from brain-tire, dyspepsia, and all the ills of an overworked and improperly nourished brain and body. To Grape-Nuts I owe the recovery of my health, and the ability to retain my position and income."

The various booths were tastily decorated and a large delegation from far and near were in attendance. The ladies have cause to congratulate themselves on their success, which though good was none better than they deserved as they worked hard and faithful to bring about the result.

He Is Still Inquiring.

Fourteen years ago, when Thomas Cooper, living on a farm two miles from Lexington, Mich., was thirteen years old, he began walking into the town every day and asking for mail at the post office. Thomas is now twenty-seven years old, and he has not missed one single week day in all those years. Regularly every morning he has taken the four-mile walk, and he is still at it.

It may also be stated that he has not, up to this date, received a single letter, but he is not discouraged. He believes one will come for him some day, even if it is only a dunning letter.

The First Club Sandwich.

A New York lawyer claims to have discovered the first club sandwich, which is now the popular tasty of every tea room. He found it down in New Mexico ten years ago. He stopped at a small town and not being on the train with a dining car, went into the little eating place and ordered a dozen sandwiches, half of which were to be ham and half tongue. After he had boarded the train and opened the package, he found the order carried out to the letter. Every sandwich had a filling of one slice of ham and one slice of tongue. But the inventor of these sandwiches was not so far out of the way.

The Conundrum Club.

It was during the prune course at the boarding-house breakfast table. The thin man spoke:

"I've got a new one this morning. Why is a one-cent stamp like a sloop?"

"Because," began the stenographer with her eyes on the ceiling.

"No, that's not the reason," said the thin man.

"My guess is because a sloop make it go," suggested the fat boarder at the end of the table.

"Very good," said the thin man, "but not the correct answer."

"Well, we give it up," came in chorus.

"Because it's a single sticker," said the thin man as he began to dodge things.—Yonkers Statesman.

A Clear Case.

"I don't very well see," said the lawyer, "how you can sue your husband for a divorce on the score of desertion when on your own account he has been living quietly at home all the time."

"You don't, eh?" retorted the indignant would-be plaintiff. "Well, if it isn't desertion for a man to take a taxicab to the club and deny that he is related to her, just because his wife has been arrested on the dock for smuggling, I don't know what desertion is!"—Harper's Weekly.

A Restricted Sphere.

Judge Bancroft Cox, in a speech in Cleveland against universal suffrage, concluded with this smiling peroration:

"Hail, then, to woman—woman, the morning star of our youth, the day star of our maturity, the evening star of our old age. Bless our stars, and may they ever continue shining—in their proper sphere."

Ready and Anxious.

"You shouldn't criticise Bigsley so severely for his failure to get along with his wife. Just put yourself in his place." "I'm going to as soon as the lady gets her divorce."

Parent's Complaint.

There is at least one man in Michigan who is determined that his son shall have as good an education as his own. He recently sent the following communication to the superintendent of schools: "Dear Sir, my boy come home today with his head broke open by a bigger boy. I wish you would look into it. My boy comes to school to learn brains, and not to have them knocked out."

Big Undecided.

Not Sorry for Blunder.

"If my friends hadn't blundered in thinking I was a doomed victim of consumption, I might not be alive now," writes D. T. Sanders, of Horrodsburg, Ky., "but for years they saw every attempt to cure a lung-racking cough fail. At last I tried Dr. King's New Discovery. The effect was wonderful. The life-saver is an unrivaled remedy for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup, hemorrhages, whooping cough or weak lungs. 50c. $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by J. H. Swan.
